Danish consumers are the most pro-organic in the world. Supermarkets in Denmark offer a wide range of innovative organic products in all categories.
Denmark exports high quality organic food to consumers all over the world.
Confidence and credibility through the world’s first national organic regulations and control system
In Denmark, scientists and farmers work together to create new solutions for even better animal welfare and less climate impact from organic production.
Danish organic farmers are passionate about their farms and produce organic food with the utmost care for animal welfare, the climate and the environment.
Animal health and welfare is a top priority for organic farmers and consumers.